County, city officials stay neutral about dockside gaming issue

BY TRACI BONNEY

As the December 4 general election approaches, opinions vary in the local political community on the issue of dockside gambling.

The controversial question — "To gamble or not to gamble?" — produces reactions that range from careful neutrality to vehement opposition to enthusiastic support.

A telephone survey of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors received the following responses:

Robert Peterson: "I have no comment. I feel that whatever the people decide, that's what we'll do."

Mike Ladner: "I'm going to let the people decide that. Whatever the people are for, I'm for." Board President Ronald Cuevas: "I am totally neutral. That's why we put it to a referendum, to let the people decide."

Lisa Coward: "I'm anxious in watching the WLOX review Thursday night. I've been reading literature on dockside gambling; I'd like to hear Sen. (Vic) Franckiewicz's and the State Tax Commission's findings."

"Surely the revenue anticipated for this community would be a plus; yet, on the other side, law enforcement, our children and the general welfare of our residents must not be taken for granted."

"This issue is so emotional. My greatest hope is that the people weigh the pros and cons, and make a concerted effort to vote on December 4." Wilmer Seymour could not be reached.

Chancery Clerk Mike Necaie said he would like to have an opportunity to vote for a state-run lottery, but when it comes to dockside gambling: "I don't know enough about the controls and regulations the state will have to be comfortably in favor of it."

While the four county supervisors contacted decline to take a stand for or against dockside gambling, members of the Bay St. Louis City Council have no qualms about expressing their opinions.

When the council members were asked after a workshop meeting Tuesday night if the city had taken or would take an official stand on the matter, council president Charles Scianna said, "The city hasn't taken an official stand."

"And we'll skirt it if it comes up," John Wilkerson added jokingly.

Once the question was posed, though, the discussion of dockside gambling did not stop with the official non-stance of the city. Individual council members debated the economic benefits and the possible problems of allowing casino ships in the Bay of St. Louis.

Board's decision stands on 1991 BHS graduation

BY TRACI BONNEY

Students and school board clashed Monday night as several Bay High seniors and their parents questioned the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board's decision to hold graduation for the class of 1991 in the district's new auditorium.

Jessica Johnson, president of the senior class, spoke on behalf of her classmates as she asked the board to reconsider their vote, made at the November 12 meeting, to move commencement ceremonies from their traditional site in Tiger Stadium to the recently completed auditorium.

Johnson told the board members that no other public high school on the Coast planned to hold a ticketed, limited-seating ceremony; that the majority of the students she had contacted did not want to break the school's tradition of a stadium graduation; and that the students wanted every family member who could attend to be there, not just four or five.

She also reminded the board members that the students were the ones who had worked and studied 12 years to reach this point in their lives.

"...the majority of the students...did not want to break the school's tradition of a stadium graduation"

—Johnson

"Don't you believe the class of 1991 should have the right to decide where they will graduate?" she asked the board.

After listening to Johnson's speech, board president Chuck Benvenuti attempted to bring up the next item on the agenda, but board member Linda Penrose moved that the board allow the seniors to decide where they would graduate. Her motion died for lack of a second, as the other board members decided to leave the matter in the hands of Superintendent Robert Magee and acting high school principal Billy Rhodes.

The approximately 20 people who had gathered to witness the outcome of the situation left the room and stood outside the building, talking among themselves. Anger and disappointment were the most common emotions expressed.

Meanwhile, the board continued its meeting by approving a request for short term notes of $17,000 for tennis court repairs and recognizing the newly-formed Bay High Fine Arts Association.

When the recognition of the association came to a vote, Penrose voted against it.

She explained that she did not object to the board acknowledging the association as the organization that supports fine arts in the district, but she did object to Benvenuti's wording of his motion. She said she interpreted the wording to mean the district sponsors the association, which she claimed the district cannot do.

After some debate, Benve-

Pharmacist Thomas has been the owner of Fahey's since 1956, when as a young man, having graduated two years prior from the University of Mississippi, he purchased the store following the death of Alvin Weinberg, the longtime pharmacist for the Fahey family.

Bay council considers tree ordinance

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis City Council members began to discuss which species and what size trees will be protected. Under the Gulfport ordinance the following trees are protected: live oak, southern magnolia, sweetbay, sweetgum and red maple.

These trees must also have a single or multiple trunk with a total caliper (the diameter of the tree 36 inches above the ground) of 8 inches or a circumference of 25 inches or more.

The first round of eyebrow raising occurred when the council members began to discuss which species and what size trees will be protected. Under the Gulfport ordinance the following trees are protected: live oak, southern magnolia, sweetbay, sweetgum and red maple. These trees must also have a single or multiple trunk with a total caliper (the diameter of the tree 36 inches above the ground) of 8 inches or a circumference of 25 inches or more.

Councilmen John Wilkerson and Jim Rutherford said they want to add the red oak and yellow pine to the list. Rutherford added he also wanted to include the pin oak.

Wilkerson objected, saying the yellow pine is too scarce in the area to be concerned about, and the pin oak is too plentiful.

Moving further into the ordinance, Scianna said he wanted the council to apply the docu-

Cuban detainees adrift in judicial system

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

There are 27 Cubans locked together in a section of the Hancock County jail today.

One large day room connects the three- and four-man cells.

About four of the men have been guests of the county for three years now.

These men were part of the Mariel boatlift in 1980. Mariel, because Fidel Castro permitted the exit to take place from Mariel Harbor in Cuba.

Upon arriving in Florida, the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) classified all Mariel Cubans as "excludable" aliens.

Excludable, as explained by INS spokesman Duke Austin, means in the eyes of the country, they are not here.

They were stopped before entering the country, thereby placing a burden of proof on the alien. He must prove why he should be permitted to enter (or stay).

By contrast, Austin added, a deportable alien is one who entered the country and was then stopped, for whatever reason. The burden of proof then becomes the government's responsibility, to prove why the person cannot stay.

These 27 men are some of the 124,779 Cubans who entered this country by boat between April 15 and October 20, 1980.

Of these people, 1,800 were deemed undesirable and were never released into society. The rest were given immigration parole.

Immigration parole allows the person to stay in the country on a trial basis. He must "walk the line." If not, all status is revoked and the alien is sent back to the country of origin.

Castro canceled all deportation arrangements with the United States in 1984 as a retaliatory action for the installation of Radio Marti in Florida.

The various stories of the men reveal the confusion involved in adjusting from one culture to another. But, for whatever reasons, crimes were committed and time was served for the crime.

Graduation question sparks debate throughout district

BY TRACI BONNEY

Emotions continue to run high on both sides of the school board table as Bay St. Louis-Waveland district officials, parents, students and Bay St. Louis city officials voice their opinions about the graduation site of the class of 1991.

School board president Chuck Benvenuti has maintained at the last two board meetings that using the new high school auditorium to conduct the ceremony will give it a dignity it has lacked over the past two or three years. Benvenuti iterated at both meetings that unruly crowds and uncooperative weather have turned past graduations into "a fiasco."

Parents of this year's seniors remember the past graduations; many had seniors graduate during the last few years. However, those who attended the November meetings continue to support holding graduation at the stadium with an option to move the ceremony to the gym if the weather turns inclement.

Bay St. Louis City Councilman John Wilkerson, who attended Monday's meeting at a parent's request, also objected to the board's handling of the matter.

Wilkerson said he did not think the seniors should decide where they will hold the ceremony, because the board would then have to face the senior class each year the students decided to protest the graduation site.

On the other hand, he said, "We have enough tradition that's gone down the drain. We ought to be able to keep at least one."

Wilkerson also said that if the graduation is moved to the auditorium, he may not attend in support of the students' protest.

Mayor Edward Favre, when asked Tuesday for his opinion on the matter, said if seating is limited he would rather offer his chair so a student can have another family member attend.

"I want to be there, but I prefer that the students be able to have their families with them," he commented.

"If we want to show off the new auditorium, that's fine. But let's do it some other way. The graduation is for the kids, not for us."

nutti let his motion stand as it was passed.

The board also discussed its policy on use of the auditorium. However, the only thing resolved was that the board needed to flesh out the policy it had adopted on a trial basis by including such items as definitions of "school use" and "non-school use," and a list of organizations recognized as school-affiliated.

At the beginning of the meeting, before tackling the graduation issue, the board approved final close-out construction funds for the high school auditorium.

At the end of the meeting, the board went into executive session to discuss personnel matters.

Upon returning to regular session, the board accepted Magee's recommendation to approve the appointment of Rhodes as acting high school principal and Gale McRaney as acting junior high school principal for the rest of the year or until principal Roger James returns from duty with the National Guard.

The board adjourned until December 10.

Preparations have been about finalized for Hancock's 1990 Red Ribbon Christmas by the Bay which gets underway on Saturday with a Red Ribbon Christmas Parade at 11 a.m.

The Red Ribbon Christmas by the Bay is sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Bay St. Louis Business Association, Diamondhead Business and Professional Association, City of Bay St. Louis, City of Waveland, The Sea Coast Echo and Coast Electric Power Association.

The parade is scheduled to begin at Blue Meadow Road and Highway 90, will travel down Main Street to Beach Boulevard, north to Carroll Avenue and then to Second Street to disband.

There are to be all types of special sales, even Old Time Trolley Rides offered at $2 each, Christmas Concert and Community Caroling.

Throughout the month of December there will be all types of special Red Ribbon Special Events for the area of Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Diamondhead and county.

I know many of the youngsters will be wanting to visit Santa on Saturday and give him their wishes for Christmas.

Santa will be at the Hancock County Courthouse following the parade Saturday.

I hope that all citizens will become involved in the area events which are to happen in the coming month.

Congratulations to Cecil Williams upon his retirement after 33 years with Coast Electric Power Association.

Cecil, who was the dispatch news services supervisor at his retirement at Coast Electric, held several positions including a 25-year stint manning the two-way radio communications for the power company.

Williams, a Hancock County native, is well known throughout the area, and I know many of his friends, too, wish him the best in retirement.

I know he has done an exceptional job at Coast Electric.

Homeport construction moratorium is bad policy

I was very disappointed that Secretary of Defense Richard Cheney announced last week a continuation of his moratorium on construction of the Pascagoula Navy Homeport.

Congress has already given its approval to the project, and I believe the Defense Department has a moral and legal obligation to the citizens of Jackson County and the State of Mississippi to finish what it started. The moratorium is terribly unhealthy for the local community, which has made significant monetary investments in the homeport project. The Secretary's announcement amounts to the slow "strangling" of the base.

In effect, the Secretary of Defense is exercising a line item veto that directly ignores congressional directives. Although the House Armed Services Committee, of which I am a member, and the full Congress voted this summer to protect this vital project, Cheney has decided to withhold construction money until April.

The moratorium is simply bad policy and could not have come at a worse time. With the situation in the Persian Gulf, it is necessary to maintain strong conventional forces. The Pascagoula homeport is an integral part in keeping our Navy Strong. I plan to register my objection to the moratorium in the strongest terms possible.

Christmas Greetings. The Women's Missionary Union at the First Baptist Church of Fannin in Brandon is making a special effort to let our military men and women in Saudi Arabia know that we are thinking of them during the holiday season.

We all can help. The WMU is requesting that all interested businesses, churches, civic organizations and clubs help with a drive to furnish the military personnel with boxes of blank Christmas cards of a non-religious nature.

Christmas cards aren't readily available overseas and the donations drive will help our military personnel spread the Christmas spirit. Cards should be delivered to your local National Guard unit this week in order to reach Saudi Arabia in time for Christmas.

This pile of garbage left at the Goodwill store on Hwy. 90 represents a recurring problem, according to store manager Avis Morreale. She said people who bring unsellable items to the store will come back at night and dump them in back where donations usually are left.

Monetary gains from casino would boost local economy

To the Editor:

Up front, let it be known, casinos do not tolerate drunken gamblers.

Next, the Mississippi State Tax Commission, the present regulator of dockside gambling in this state, is very much, and will remain, in control of the situation. To argue against this fact is to display surprising ignorance of the gaming act.

Thirdly, the act's structure provides for direct and indirect regular payments to both the general and educational funds at both the state and local level. Even a modest set of projections under the provisions of the existing framework produces numbers far in excess of the alleged taxes to a political entity now being bantered.

Fourthly, as the economy of the area improves through the taxes, payrolls, increased sales tax rebates, paid by or, as a result of dockside gaming and the increased area tourism, property values tend to rise.

However, this, coupled to the vast increase of tax base, will result in the taxing authority to lower the mill rate due to greatly enhanced tax revenue picture. This is apart from the monthly checks provided adjacent political entities by a gaming vessel, based on a percentage of gross gaming receipts and increased sales tax rebates.

Paying eight percent of casino receipts directly to the state, as well as an annual tax for each machine or piece of gaming equipment, the operator also pays an annual $5,000 fee, is bonded and licensed, and pays hefty ad valorem taxes on shoreline, family-oriented support facilities.

Finally, we at Bay Cove Harbour have repeatedly invited all interested parties to pay us a call. We, as a result, have welcomed many well-wishers and hired quite a campaign staff. It is a pity that the folks who continue to promulgate misleading propaganda failed to avail themselves of the opportunity.

Sincerely,

Charles S. Lambert

Good government, not gambling the solution to financial problems

Dear Editor:

I am neither for nor against gambling, however, I feel full-page ads promising lower taxes and ads for employment contingent on passage of "cruise ship gaming" are a bit much!

We all know there will have to be an increase in police and fire protection. What will be the increase in water and sewerage demands?

Where are these barges and/or ships going to be docked? Can anyone put a figure on tax monies the schools will receive?

How much tax money is going to be siphoned off by state and county governments? I don't like to be a skeptic, but, I have seen Hwy. 90 turn into one big shopping center. We have become affluent with our own Kmart, Wal-Mart, Burger King and McDonald's. I have seen the creation of Port Bienville, Stennis International Airport and even the Stennis Space Center, and never, not once, have I seen lower taxes.

In fact, one could argue that by continuation of seawall taxes, cost for additional water and sewerage services, that our taxes and utility costs have steadily risen.

One question. Who are "Citizens for Economic Recovery through Cruise Vessel Gaming?"

Are they local taxpayers? If so, why don't they list their names within the ad? And why congratulate Tunica County, a county about 400 miles from Hancock County?

It may seem that I am against gambling. Wrong! It is just that in the past, things such as an industrial park, an airport, a state park and discount stores were going to be a cure-all. Well they haven't been! In the end, it is the community and local governments that make the difference.

So, may I suggest in regard to the vote on gambling: If you want to gamble, vote for it. If you do not want to gamble or are morally opposed, vote against it.

But do not vote for gambling expecting it to be a panacea for our financial problems. Elect good government.

Yours truly,

Earle Hasney

The survey is a good indica-

Sheet accusation concerning the presence of 10,000 prostitutes in Las Vegas, we too are a little phased back as to how to compute the mathematics involved.

Perhaps something was out of context? We would like to think so. Maybe the formula was gleaned during a conversation in Nevada? Too, the calculations applied against that number of ladies of comparatively easy virtue being in number equal to one out of every woman between the ages of 15 and 30 in Las Vegas is as equally suspect and obviously lacking in parameters and credulence.

Perhaps the computations are those involved in determining that if a gaming vessel takes in $1 million, the municipality in which it operates nets less than $264! How ridiculous and how transparent an attempt to deceive.

The constant digging at crime statistics is another set of misnomers. If one has an empty Superdome, crime is non-existent. If there are 60,000 plus people watching the Saints play inside the same facility, then "crime may rise" to the extent of a couple of "drunk-in-stands" tickets, an above average exchange of spectator opinions, a hug and a kiss occasioned by a TD, and a pick-pocket sighted lurking in the corridors.

Hardly an occasion to report an influx of Mafia, "red ladies," and rampant drug sales, although all may be present, and from a zero count, crime statistics could show a real zoom.

Such cities as Dallas, Houston, New Orleans and Washington, D.C., to name just a few, are not home to legal gambling, and yet their rate of felony crime is out of all proportion.

Before quoting crime increases, and the like, let's first deal with a succession of knowns to establish what is an apple or an orange or a red herring. Gambling does not cause this constantly hammered excessive crime. Unemployment, poverty, despair, neglect, homelessness, these are the major contributors to crime.

We have over and over again explained our intent to construct a new access road (at no cost to the city or county), and our verbal contract with private, trained local security forces to police our operations. Further rhetoric on either of these topics is redundant.

The state is without sufficient funds for education. The legislature provided a channel by which new money can be funneled into the general fund with 63 percent earmarked for schools. Dockside gaming's local taxes—provided directly and through use, ad valorem, sales, gaming, and so forth, will go towards lessening the tax bite for all county residents and provide for our students.

Our future employment requirements at Bay Cove Harbour are considerable at all levels in the proposed job-intensive, family oriented operation, not located in the slums of a major city, but in a 233-acre, private yachting resort.

We are trying to provide a practical economic boost to this area and individuals alike, bringing new job opportunities and outside funds to benefit all our state, and in particular, this community. If there is a better, immediate, alternate way then it behooves our dissenters to let us all know.

War II, they met again to become a team for life.

In 1945, the newly married couple took over the store.

"Pharmaceutical work has changed completely in every way, except the handwritten prescription," said Lynch.

"In those days," said Lynch, "everything was compounded by hand. Liquids and powders.

"Today, everything is in tablets and capsules. Occasionally, a doctor will ask for a special preparation, but mostly it's dispense and counsel on usage. "The counseling is very important. When I first started out, there were not as many drugs which could hurt you. Today, there are very good ones, very versatile, but taken with other medicines, they could be harmful."

The store was different then, described Lynch. "Everything was kept behind counters. No one waited on themselves."

When a customer came in, you served him, filling his order. If he wanted a bottle of aspirin, you asked which kind. There were only two, and you brought them to him.

"The store walls were covered with large mahogany cabinets with sliding glass doors. They went out with Camille," added Lynch. "Everything went out with Camille. The soda fountain too."

The penny scale is two pounds over and 50 years old, confided Lynch. "People who grew up here return with their children and take photos with the scale. They feel a part of the store and want to share it with their children."

When you enter Waveland Drugs, you have entered the home of a friend. Sit down. Have a cup of coffee, a soda pop. "They are my extended family," described Lynch of her customers. "We have shared many times, good and bad."

There are two small circular tables in the back of the store. Here the local gentry gather and socialize. There is even a child size table and chairs for the always welcomed pint-size companions.

Coleman Avenue is no longer the active center of town it once was. It is marred by the migration of businesses to the more convenient byway of Highway 90.

The shoppers who rush from car to store and car to store do not know the world of Louise Lynch.

Lynch's seven daughters are seven women now, with not one pharmacist in the bunch.

The oldest is 41 and the youngest 27. Lynch's husband died following the birth of her last child.

"I don't know what will become of the store when I retire," pondered Lynch, "but that's too far away to think about now."

"Pharmacy is a good career for a woman," said Lynch. "You can work part time if you have a family. It's been a good life for me."

"I'm still here. Maybe the Lord tried to tell me this is where he wants me to be—serving the people of Waveland."

Lynch was confined to bed from a back injury during the time of this interview. But she expected to be back on her feet by today.

Cuban

Upon completion of a criminal sentence, the INS picks up the alien, now detainee, and holds him indefinitely.

According to Austin, there are only 40 of the original 1,800 "never released" Cubans left in U.S. jails.

Some 476 have been returned to Cuba. Austin said "We send a few back every now and then when diplomatic lines open."

"There are 2,600 detainees, and 3,000 serving criminal sentences, at this time."

The federal government pays $46 per day, per detainee, to the particular facility where they are kept.

"Of what benefit is it to keep these people in jail?" asked Austin. "It is expensive. It costs the U.S. government $55 million a year to detain these people."

By ruling of the courts, the INS does have the right to hold them "indefinitely," explained Austin. "Not only do we have the right, but the courts have instructed that INS has a responsibility to not allow a danger back into society."

Of the 27 county detainees, Marie Lowther, a worker with the Catholic Social and Community Services Inc., said not one committed a crime involving violence.

Austin disagreed, saying "There isn't one, still in jail, who has not committed a violent crime."

The nature of the crime holds tremendous weight in the decision-making process of whether to re-introduce a detainee into society.

"Once a year," said Austin, "we give or take a month, each detainee is brought before a INS panel review." Here, records pertaining to the detainee's criminal behavior, prior to entry and since entry is reviewed along with behavior while in jail and potential for future violence.

The records of review consist of "internal statements" reported Austin. Prison guard reports, criminal records, the history of the alien, criminal convictions and behavior and administrative panel review reports.

The detainee never sees these records.

The Christian Ministries have placed themselves in the role of advocate for these people.

"A lot of these people have working skills," said Lowther. "Bricklayers, masons, artists, cooks...sleeping all day in jail. They want to work. They want to study. They have no outlet."

Captain Gerald Necaie, warden of the Hancock County Justice Facility reported for the past three years, "since we moved in the new facility, we have maintained 25-30

Cubans."

The only information we see is their medical records and possibly a note from the previous facility, saying if there was any difficulty."

Necaie explained, in his opinion, the most difficult aspect of the detainee situation is that there is "no projected release day."

The Hancock County jail is a holding facility. Time is served elsewhere, explained Necaie, such as a state or federal prison.

A volunteer with the Catholic Social and Community Services, Florence Duffie reported the Mariel Cubans are treated humanely here in Bay St. Louis.

She said they are fed three meals a day and are permitted correspondence. Several work in the kitchen and exercise is allowed on a semi-regular basis.

"But there is no cure for the frustration of not knowing what will become of them," she said.

The Catholic group trains volunteers to assist the Mariel Cubans. They help as translators, immigration advocates, review representatives, and most importantly, they are people who care

I wish to express my humble thanks to those who worked and voted for me. I'm sorry we lost the primary.

We, the people have worked hard and accomplished much to make Waveland a city we can be very proud of. May it continue to be so in the future.

We, Jean, the family and I, feel that we have been blessed to have so many dear friends.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

How was your Thanksgiving? I enjoyed mine. Both my grandmothers and Grandpa Lou joined Mom, Dad, Jeff, Jennifer, her two little ones and me at Mom and Dad's house in Bay Springs. We ate, talked, goofed off and just generally relaxed. Getting to Bay Springs and back, however, was another story. The traffic wasn't bad and neither was the weather. The 2½-hour drive itself was uneventful. Packing and unpacking was the adventure.

Since it's the holiday season, let me offer you some traveling advice: don't take any more with you than is absolutely necessary.

That sounds like pretty sage advice, right? Well, guess what? I don't follow it.

Wait, let me rephrase that. I don't follow it according to a normal person's definition of what is "absolutely necessary" for a trip.

For an overnight trip, what would you consider absolutely necessary? Nightclothes, fresh garments for the next day (along with the proper accessories), toothbrush and other toiletries, maybe a dressy outfit if you plan to attend a party?

Okay, I'll go along with that list — so far. But what else would you add?

Did I hear some ultra-practical soul out there say, "Nothing. That list covers it all."

Oh, dear! Let me educate you about traveling with Traci. Leaving aside the fact that we didn't list the hair dryer and makeup — which I may or may not take with me, depending on how I feel — there are a number of items that were excluded from the inventory.

First there's my camera. I'm the family shutterbug, so it's always a case of "Have tripod, will travel" for me.

Then there are my tape player and cassettes. My car has no built-in cassette deck, so when my favorite radio station fades out I pop a tape into the Magnavox and hop down the highway.

And, of course, what trip to Mom's house would be complete without the laundry?

If you think I'm joking, you're wrong. My bedspread was the unfortunate victim of a dangerous cosmetic spill, and I didn't trust the apartment complex's machines to remove the stain.

The last thing I included on my trek to Bay Springs was my luggage. You see, I had my "necessary" things neatly packed in one small overnight bag. The luggage was for the laundry.

Believe it or not, it makes sense. I don't have a laundry basket, so I needed something to put my clean laundry in, and I certainly wasn't about to reuse the garbage bags I had employed to haul my clothes to Bay Springs.

It has been a long-standing joke in our family that I don't know how to pack for a trip that is less than a week long. That's not entirely true. I do know how to pack for short trips.

On the other hand, I would advise you not to try opening the trunk of my car once I've packed it for a holiday voyage — unless you plan to re-pack it.

Packing perils

"Not a day goes by, he's not mentioned," said Thomas of Weinberg, referring to the positive memory the community still maintains.

Mrs. Edmond Fahey Sr. reported that the building was originally run by Lena Dell Shannon Fahey about 45 years before Thomas purchased the store. She left it to her grandson, Leo F. Fahey and in turn Edmond Fahey Sr. was the last member of the family to own it.

Fahey Drugs sits along Railroad Avenue with a corner all its own. In the next block are the remains of several side-by-side, two story buildings of which the sloop of turn of the century skirts can still be heard in the mind's time.

Thomas explained, "at one time, this was the center of town."

"There was a commuter train running. Seven or eight trains a day would pass, freight and passenger."

Today two bars, a paint store and liquor store keep the block alive, and Fahey Drugs, company along the strip.

Outside, workmen were completing the finishing touches to a new canvas awning. Thomas stood back from the building admiring the "face lift", he called it.

He spoke of how he received his motivation to become a pharmacist from "a lady, Mrs. Vaughn, I worked for in Picayune."

He told of how his interest was further aroused by the time he spent during World War II working in a hospital.

Having served in Hot Springs, Ark. and Okinawa, Japan, Thomas entered pharmacy school following his discharge.

His education was cut short when the Korean War broke out and the National Guard's 138th Pontoon Bridge Company from Picayune was called into action.

After two years of service during the Korean War, Thomas returned and finished school. His first job was in Pascagoula. "I had heard of the store being for sale in Bay St. Louis. I wanted to work for myself."

Thomas spoke of the compounds he mixed by hand and the change to self service, compared to when an order was filled and delivered; the wrapping of every package with string like a gift.

Middle of the night calls are infrequent said Thomas, "Since the hospital was built and people have a 24-hour emergency room to go to, I don't have too much of that."

A change Thomas considers unusual in these past 34 years, is the advent of the third party payment. Insurance companies and government programs are paying the expenses for the people.

"We always did our best to not turn down anyone who needed medicine. With the government programs and the churches' help today," explained Thomas, people find assistance.

Thomas spoke of a time when Bay St. Louis had no veterinarian. "People would bring in their dogs or cats and we would set a leg or sew up a cut, very crudely."

"I would 'play' doctor or vet, depending on the need."

The most unusual animal to have had the help of Thomas was a bear.

"A circus was passing through town," said Thomas, "and this lady had a pedigree bear from Mexico that appeared to have suffered a heart attack. I gave it a shot of a diuretic and it appeared to help."

During Hurricane Camille, Fahey Drugs lost its roof, but the pharmacy area remained intact, according to Thomas.

"We served the people at the front door as best we could, for Lynch was under water and two others were completely wiped out."

Thomas was visited by a friend with a box full of fresh turnips while he sat at a back table where customers gather through out the day.

"This," said Thomas referring to the friendly farmer, "is what makes a neighborhood store special."

"To me this is an ideal way to run a drug store, where you know everyone."

Investigator Matt Karl of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department reported Tuesday the arrest of an unnamed 15-year-old on a charge of burglary.

Karl said the suspect was arrested November 14 after Bay Side Park resident Paul E. Reilly reported the theft of several tools and truck engine parts October 24.

Some $200 worth of missing carpenter and mechanic tools and truck parts, which have a total value of about $2,900, have been recovered, Karl added.

He said the case is still under investigation and another arrest is expected shortly.

Ambrose's prize-winning Eisenhower epic released in condensed biography

EDITORS NOTE: Author Stephen Ambrose was featured speaker this week at the Hancock County Historical Society meeting. He will speak at the Gulfport-Harrison County Library Thursday, Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. Copies of his book are available at Bookends Bookstore in Bay St. Louis.

He was the most successful general in the greatest war ever fought. As president, he ranks with Wilson and the two Roosevelts as one of the great presidents of the 20th century. So asserts Presidential biographer Stephen Ambrose in his brilliant condensation of his prize-winning epic work on Eisenhower.

On the night of June 6, 1944, Dwight D. Eisenhower's place in history was fixed as surely as the Allied troops on the beaches of Normandy.

Though he was more popular when he left the office of President of the United States than when he went in, his performance rating by a national poll of academic historians at the time placed him nearly at the bottom of the list of U.S. Presidents. By the early 1980's, a new poll placed him ninth.

In Eisenhower: Soldier and President (Simon and Schuster, October 12, 1990; $29.95), Stephen Ambrose offers eloquent evidence that Eisenhower "will soon be ranked with Wilson and the Roosevelts as one of the four truly great Presidents of the 20th century."

Eisenhower: Soldier and President is being published to coincide with the centennial of Eisenhower's birth. Hailed as "the best book to date on its subject" by the New York Times Book Review when it was first published in two volumes in the early 80s, this monumental work has been revised and condensed into one highly readable and entertaining volume.

From the early years in Abilene, readers follow the eager and engaging young Eisenhower through West Point, his courtship with Mamie, his apprenticeship with MacArthur, and his somewhat frustrating early years as an officer with ever increasing responsibility but no real battle experience until 1939, when war began with Germany.

Ambrose deftly chronicles the war years, Eisenhower's rise to Allied Supreme Commander, his extraordinary leadership abilities, and his brilliance in out-thinking Rommel in North Africa and in masterminding Overlord.

After the war, Ambrose documents Eisenhower's wrenching ambivalence over his candidacy for President, up to and even during the primary elections, when he was still completing his duties as NATO commander.

"Soon I shall be coming home," Eisenhower wrote to a friend, "and I really dread—for the first time in my life—the prospect of coming back to my own country."

As President, Eisenhower was not only responsible for launching the ambitious Interstate Highway Program, he also gave the nation eight years of peace and prosperity, balanced the budget, and stopped inflation. "No wonder," writes Ambrose, "that millions of Americans felt the country was damned lucky to have him."

Ambrose, who has devoted nearly three decades to studying Eisenhower's life, offers many intriguing insights into the man whose dogged devotion to duty, to his country, and to democracy made him a figure of international renown and respect.

Gambling

the outset, contended that gambling "demeans the value of people and decreases the quality of the town."

"When gambling was wide open here in the '40s, Bay St. Louis wasn't worth a damn," he stated.

Mayor Edward Favre and councilmen John Wilkerson and Jim Rutherford maintained that dockside gambling will bring economic benefit to the community.

Rutherford said that since the Coast's economy is largely based on federal contracts that may well be slashed in light of government spending cutbacks, the city needs to look for a way to bring in revenues.

Favre said he thinks any traffic or legal problems that may result can be controlled.

He also claimed dockside gambling is like any other business.

When told that people bringing their money into a store or other business get a return for their dollars, and asked what a person gets when he spends his money in gambling, Favre said, "I look at it as entertainment, just like when I go to the movies."

Trees

ment's provisions to all public and private property. The Gulfport ordinance includes property designated as a multifamily residential district of more than 10 units per acre, a commercial district or an industrial one.

Rutherford objected to Scianina's proposal that single family residential properties be included. Rutherford said he did not think the council should be able to tell a person whether or not a tree must remain on his property if that person owned the property and planned to build a single family dwelling on it.

Rutherford also objected to a provision calling for a $25 flat fee and the requirement of a tree site plan for application to remove protected trees. He suggested a "per tree" fee for up to three or four trees and a flat fee for any number above that.

As for the tree site plan, he contended that would increase the cost of constructing.

"I'm in favor of protecting trees, but I don't want this council to escalate the cost of building in the city. I don't want us to do anything that will discourage building."

The council discussed and debated other provisions in the Gulfport ordinance, then asked clerk of council Mike Cuevas to adapt the language of the ordinance for Bay St. Louis and give the revised document to council attorney John Scaife.

Mark Harshbarger Wears The Same Face At Home He Wears At Work.

If we hired people at Garden Park Community Hospital only for their proficiency in clinical care—how quickly they can give out medication, how easily they can fill out a chart or how skillfully they can bandage a wound, we could hire the same people any hospital does.

But we don't. We hire people for more than that.

We hire them for their proficiency in patient care—how quickly they can drop what they're doing if a patient needs them, how easily they can make a patient feel comfortable or how skillfully they can listen.

And because of that, we get the kind of people you won't find in other hospitals. People like Mark Harshbarger who put their best foot forward regardless of where they are.

Cookbook authors Chase, Davis featured at Bookends Saturday

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Cooking with a decidedly New Orleans flair will be showcased Saturday at Bookends Bookstore on Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, when two noted chefs will be on hand to autograph copies of their respective cookbooks.

Leah Chase, owner and chef extraordinaire of Dooky Chase Restaurant on Orleans Avenue, offers recipes made famous in the eatery, as well as ones from her personal files.

Chase, who has been honored on numerous occasions for her tireless civic contributions, has compiled 200 recipes, which are interspersed with colorful reproductions of the African-American art which lines the restaurant walls.

Most recipes rely on her Creole heritage and early experiences with "country cooking" for their success and ease in preparation. Exotic spices are not necessary to flavor these dishes.

Forty years of restaurant experience yield these recipes which have been proven winners:

Hancock, SSC players honored

Thirteen local athletes were recently selected for the All District VIII AAAA Football Team for 1990, according to Harrison County School District Athletic Director Buddy Singleton.

Singleton said the coaches at the schools included in the team selection nominated players for the honor. Nomination is based on the players' performance during the 1990 season.

The team will not play any other football team, he added, since its sole purpose is to recognize outstanding players throughout the district. Those athletes named to the team will receive a certificate and plaque.

Small High School poll ranks CES Number 1

When this basketball season began, Coast Episcopal was ranked seventh in the nation, according to the Small High School National poll.

After winning eight of their first nine games, the Raiders have jumped all the way to the number one position.

Since a loss in the championship game of the Natchez Trace Tip-Off Classic, the Raiders have gone undefeated and have outscored their opponents by an average of 30 points a game.

The Raiders are presently averaging 72 points a game, while allowing their opponents only 42 points per game.

"It's really great for the kids being ranked No. 1 nationally," said Raider Coach Jack Hutchinson. "We don't expect to go through the rest of the season undefeated, but for now, we are happy to be on top."

The Small High School rankings are for schools which have less than 60 students in grades 9-12. There are better than 300 schools nationwide.

The following is a list of the rankings:

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETICS Top 8 in the United States Small School Boys Basketball, Division 1-A

2. Central Park Christian School, Birmingham, Ala.
3. Beth Haven Christian School, Louisville, Ky.

Raiders log eighth win

Coast Episcopal High School won for the seventh consecutive time and ran its overall basketball record to 8-1 Tuesday, when they defeated Bogalusa Bensford 86-73.

Senior Bruce Hull and junior Chris Painter each collected a triple double. Hull scored 38 points, grabbed 10 rebounds, and handed out 10 assists. Painter scored 13 points, grabbed 10 rebounds, and dishd out 11 assists.

The Raiders built a 24-19 first quarter lead and increased the margin to 46-35 at the half. The score was 67-50 after three periods.

Chris Painter

"I don't think we were as sharp as we've been in some of our previous games," said Raider Coach Jack Hutchinson. "We haven't played in a week, and I think that had a lot to do with the way we played defensively," he said.

On offense, freshman Tyrone Jones added 16 points for the Raiders with sophomore Nathan Guice adding nine, Dave Hagan adding eight, and George Hlass two points.

On Saturday night, the Raiders travel to Prentiss for a key district game. Tipoff time is set for 7 p.m.

of young men. They are a hard working group and have performed admirably these past eight nights. I am very happy to go into the holidays at 3-3. We are getting better each game, and with this group of young men it's going to be an enjoyable year.

"If people want to watch good basketball, they can come see the Tigers play, and know every player wearing the blue and gold is giving his best."

The Lady Tigers, missing four starting players, traveled to Vancleave and gave a valiant effort, but could not keep up with the more experienced Lady Bulldogs.

Bay High dropped to 0-6 for the season with a 56-16 loss. Tracy Collins was the leading scorer for the Lady Tigers with six points. Linda Thomas and Kecia Walker each had four points.

The junior varsity Tigers dropped to 2-1 for the season with a close 47-43 loss. Tristian Robertson led all scorers with 15 points, Travis Collins also scored in double figures with 11. Miguel Mazarias scored nine and Tripp Whavers seven for Bay High.

Funds to be raised for United Cerebral Palsy

F.E.B. Distributing Co. will join with Miller Brewing Co. in December in a coastwide fundraising effort for United Cerebral Palsy.

In December 1989, some $12,600 was donated to UCP through these local fundraising efforts. Nationally over $1 million was raised.

Local restaurants and lounges will ask each patron to become a "UCP Tree Trimmer" by purchasing a paper Christmas wreath. The donor will then put his name on the wreath and hang it on the "Christmas Tree."

Some 300 local convenience stores and supermarkets will ask for donations through the UCP canister program. They will also have wreaths for sale.

Several special events will be held this year to raise additional funds.

Dec. 1, the first Orange Grove Fundraising Festival will be held at Orange Grove Community Park.

Also on Dec. 23, a fundraising event will be at Edgewater

Mall. Fifty percent of all funds raised will go directly toward meeting local needs on the Gulf Coast.

F.E.B. Distributing Co. has set a goal this year of $15,000.

Late fall garden tips reap fertile spring beds

BY RANDALL SMITH
County Agent

Vegetable garden chores are minimal this time of year. The few remaining vegetables in the garden require little care, and insect and disease pressures are at a seasonal low.

Daily daylight hours continue getting shorter as we approach the winter solstice, and with the return to standard time, there are few hours for outside work.

—Continue to harvest fresh vegetables (leafy greens, rutabagas, turnips, cabbage, broccoli, peppers and tomatoes) as long as weather permits.

—Check on the condition of stored vegetables. Sweet potatoes need to be kept at storage temperatures near 55° F. Pumpkins and winter squash (butter-nut, acorn and hubbard) will store for a few months, but the eating quality deteriorates with lengthy storage. If there is space in the freezer, consider preparing these vegetables for freezing while they are still high in quality.

—Clean the garden site in preparation for next year. Remove dead plants to eliminate disease and insect overwintering sites. Also place stakes, poles and canes in a dry storage place.

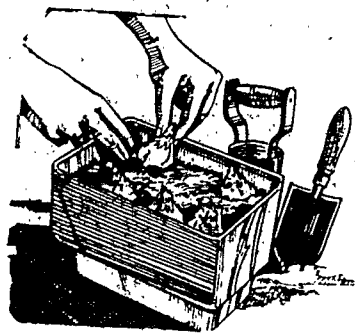

—Collect soil samples to test for fertilizer and lime needs in the vegetable garden. Remember, lime raises the soil pH and should be applied in the fall to allow adequate soil reaction time.

—Row up part of the garden in December (weather permitting) where the early vegetables will be planted. These soils will warm and dry faster than the parts of the garden left not rowed-up. Irish potatoes, English peas, cabbage and onions are some of the earliest vegetables planted.

—Keep garden pesticides (dusts, liquids and granules) in a cool, dry place where they will not be exposed to freezing temperature but away from people, food and pets. Make sure every container is labeled.

—Remember to clean shovels, rakes, hoes and other garden tools. These tools should be treated with oil to prevent rusting and increase their longevity.

—Remove leaves from turf-grass areas to prevent them from smothering the grass. Be sure to use the leaves in your compost to enrich your soil.

Now is an excellent time to plant spring-blooming bulbs and other perennials such as daffodils, Dutch iris, hyacinth, summer snowflake, iris and oxalis.

Lawns overseeded with ryegrass require regular care. Mowing neatens the winter lawn and helps it thicken with the growth of side shoots.

Fertilizer is necessary for healthy green color and to help it survive sudden, hard freezes. Do not over fertilize, since this may predispose the grass to winter injury, encourage rampant weed growth and to provide good conditions for disease development.

Locally grown Christmas trees abundant, tolerant of indoor heat

Those who feared the tradition of choosing and cutting the family Christmas tree might be lost to urbanization can put their fears to rest.

Mississippi is home to about 170 Christmas tree growers, many of whom allow customers to visit their farm and choose and cut their own trees.

In 1989, an estimated 250,000 native Christmas trees were produced in the state for a value of $4.5 million.

Dr. Stephen Dicke, area forest resources specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service and a member of the Louisiana-Mississippi Christmas Tree Association, said an estimated 60 percent of the natural trees sold in the state last year were Mississippi grown.

The most popular varieties are the native species of Eastern Red cedar and Virginia pine.

Dicke said the Virginia pine is more tolerant to indoor heating and can stay green for up to five weeks with correct care.

Expect Eastern red cedars to turn brown after about three weeks, he said.

If consumers buy their tree from a retail lot, they can test it the tree before then, he recommended storing the tree outside in the cool shade in a container of water to minimize stress. Trees need to be transported for freshness by looking for soft sap on the cut base. If the needles of the tree bend without breaking, the tree is fresh.

Dicke said consumers should wait until at least three weeks before Christmas to bring a live tree indoors. If they must cut in a covered vehicle or in the trunk of the car. A 5 to 10-mile trip on the top of a car can turn a fresh tree into a disappointment.

The LA-MS Christmas Tree Association offered the following tips for the freshest and safest natural Christmas tree.

—Saw off the butt end of the tree 1 to 2 inches above the original cut and immediately place the tree in water in a cool place until time to display it.

removing trouble spots... when to leave temporary lower branches, and when to cut them.

The booklet even shows how to hold a pair of pruning shears and how to make pruning cuts at the proper angle.

You'll learn how to shape and guide a shade tree when it's young so that it's tall, straight, strong and healthy when it's old.

The design of the booklet makes it easy to browse through to pick up tips. You'll discover why tree paint isn't necessary, even on large cuts... how to select and care for pruning tools... how to prune according to the tree's function.

Color it natural—beauty abounds in fall leaves

As brisk northerns chill the air, hues of bright golds, reds and purples dance in the breeze to thrill the senses and to announce winter's approach.

Having grown up in the hill area of central Mississippi, I have found memories of leisure weekend walks with my dad and brother through fall stricken woods in search of the many treasures that nature offered.

Bubbling creeks, small waterfalls, a fleeting deer and cheerful songbirds always seemed more sensational during the fall than at any other time of the year. I always attribute these enhanced feelings to the chill in the air and beautiful fall colors that unexpectedly abound in the native landscape.

This beautiful phenomenon that occurs on a yearly basis is due to a chemical change occurring in the leaves of all deciduous (lose their leaves) trees and shrubs as they begin to prepare for winter. Many people think the change in color is brought about due to frost, but in reality, this change begins well in advance of cold weather.

During the spring and summer, the leaves have a green color. This color is due to a pigment called chlorophyll which is the dominant plant pigment during the growing season.

Chlorophyll enhances the plant's capability to absorb sunlight, and in the presence of plant water and carbon dioxide produces carbohydrates (sugar) that are pertinent in driving crucial plant physiological and metabolic processes. This process is called photosynthesis.

As the growing season progresses, a thin layer of cells called the abscission layer begin to differentiate at the base of the petiole (leaf stem).

This differentiation causes a pinching-in effect which girdles the petiole base and blocks the water and nutrient flow into and out of the leaf. The abscission process is hastened as the temperature begins to cool, the days begin to shorten and vital plant processes begin to slow.

At the end of the growing season, due to the environmental changes and the Various chemical reactions follow which provide an array of colors depending upon the plant species and chemicals present.

Secondary pigments which provide us with spectacular colors include carotenoids (red, orange and yellow pigments), xanthophylls (yellow pigments) and tannins (brown pigments).

As colors begin to fade and the leaves dry the brisk autumn winds make the trees barren of their beloved abscission layer, chlorophyll loses its dominance as it is broken up into various substances. The remaining food material is sent into the body of the tree to be stored for the spring. Folks, this is what is referred to as sap decline.

Of course, this sap will rise again in the spring to swell buds and provide enough energy for initial leaf development. The remaining substances within the leaf are watery where oil globules, crystals and a small number of yellow, strongly refractive bodies are suspended. These bodies give the leaves their yellow color.

The purple, red and brown colors that become evident in the leaves result from a buildup of residual sugars left following the sap decline.

leaves. Their descent to the ground often brings a lost feeling as we transcend into yet another season.

However, fallen leaves provide a fertile forest floor as minerals within the leaf cells are returned to the top inches of the soil. The leaves also provide adequate levels of humus to the forest floor which absorbs and holds water. This provides an adequate habitat for various native, herbaceous plants.

Of course, the leaf fall also serves as a means for the tree to better endure the winter's snow and ice by reducing unnecessary weight.

As I travel over the countryside, several native trees and shrubs truly captivate my senses with their sensational colors.

These plants include oak-leaf hydrangea, native vaccinium, shagbark hickory, white oak, dogwood, tupelo gum, red maple, youpon holly, sweetgum, bald cypress, tallow, flameleaf sumac (not poison sumac), spranglerberry, trumpet creeper, American beautyberry, blackgum, red oaks, redbuds, muscadine, swamp chestnut oak, beech and river birch.

If you miss those serene woodland walks, you are in luck. On Sunday, Dec. 2 at 2 p.m. there will be a guided, woodland tour at the Crosby Arboretum in Picayune by Ed. Blake, the arboretum's landscape architect.

The tour will teach you to better enjoy native woodland habitats during the fall. So mark this date on your calendar. Cost is $2 for adults, $1 for children, or $5 per family. For more information, give me a call at the Hancock County Extension Office (467-5456).

So until we meet again, this is Randy Smith saying enjoy, not destroy, the serenity and beauty of our native woodland landscapes.

Roll call

Staff Sergeant Thomas Chapman calls out the names of each of the men and women of the 1355th Bay St. Louis detachment to assure all are present. Family and friends are present to say goodbye. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

Keeping our Guard up

More than 60 Hancock County residents were called to duty with the 1355th Combat Support Company of the Mississippi National Guard.

As they left families and friends behind last week to serve our country, many gestures of kindness were extended by the community.

The cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland and Hancock County jointly sponsored a dinner for the unit. John Rutherford was head chef, assisted by a members of American Legion Post 139. A staff of volunteers served. Food was donated by local grocery stores, merchants and individuals.

We would like for our Guard members to continue to feel appreciated. They are currently stationed at Fort Rucker, with no official orders for another destination.

Vicki Overal, wife of Sergeant William J. Overal Jr., is chairman of the family support group for Detachment 1, 1355th. She is willing to forward mail and packages to the proper destination. For information, she may be reached at 467-4582.

Hancock County Vo-Tech students thanked Metal trades instructor Lavern Cuevas treated Hancock County Vocational-Technical students to a fish fry for their assistance in construction of a "Safety Debris Katcher."

The apparatus is constructed to fit on the neck of a drill chuck, the housing neck of a rotor hammer or stud gun and extends past the drill bit to make surface contact. As drilling is executed, the neck of the Safety Debris Katcher compresses to allow free movement of the drill while permitting a high percentage of free-falling debris to drop into the "Katcher."

Jessica Durel-Taylor of Pass Christian had an opportunity to sharpen her leadership abilities, explore the process of decision-making and improve communication skills during Mississippi University for Women's first "Dynamic Discoveries" seminar Nov. 16 and 17.

She joined students from throughout the state and region at the seminar, which featured sessions on topics such as "Making Decisions and Setting Goals," "Being a Leader Within a Group," "Women Overcoming Odds," "Positive Self Image" and "A Woman's Place in Society."

"The leadership seminar was a wonderful opportunity to enhance the skills that young women possess today," said MUW student Teresa Loper, president of the Union Advisory Cabinet, which sponsored the seminar. "MUW wanted to provide young women with the opportunity to expand their horizons and develop more self-esteem."

Loper said having an opportunity to sharpen communication and decision-making skills "will give young women a competitive edge in the job market."

Jessica Durel-Taylor is a junior at Our Lady Academy. She is the daughter of Robert B. Taylor and Denise M. Durel.

Celebrating Christmas 'Old Town' style

"Old Town" Bay St. Louis is hanging up its red ribbons and rolling out the red carpet for the Christmas holidays. Traditional celebrations and decorations will enhance the "Old Town" area of Main Street and Beach Boulevard.

The lovingly renovated "Old Town" area is a delightful experience any time of the year, but Christmas is really special. Streets are decorated with Christmas cards executed by the local arts community, luminaries are lighted at dusk, strolling musicians and carolers entertain, and the strength of community is in evidence.

"Old Town" merchants have extended hours for annual open house parties for customers and guests. You may shop for sophisticated antiques, exquisite crystal, colorful wind socks, food stuffs to delight any palette, collectibles, or toys.

December 1, 8, and 9 are the highlight days of Christmas in "Old Town" with the Christmas parade, trolley rides, community caroling, Santa's Shop, Adopted Artist's Tour, fashion show and the dedication of the Kate Lobrano House as the home of the Hancock County Historical Society.

Christmas is the time for sharing, and you and your family may bring toys for the Doll and Toy Fund or items for our armed forces in Saudi Arabia. There will be collection points located on the courthouse lawn Saturday, Dec. 1.

If you have forgotten the days when Main Street served as the heart of the city, treat yourself during the holidays. Park your car, walk and remember. Take the time to enjoy the restoration and revitalization of your hometown.

Santa's Shop, just for the little ones

Bay St. Louis merchants have organized a wonderful shopping experience for children Saturday, Dec. 1, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Santa's Shop, located in the vestibule of the courthouse on Main Street.

Your children may shop, unaccompanied by adults, but supervised by the Princess Shoppe Teen Board. All of the gift items are priced $5 and under.

Children have wonderful ideas of what types of gifts are perfect for someone, parents, other family members, teachers, friends. They notice that you dog-ear your books, love chocolate candies, like fancy earrings or bracelets, collect tiny Santa's.

Santa's Shop is a wonderful learning experience about the importance of community support and involvement. It is sponsored by the Bay St. Louis Business Association, and donations will be made to the Bay Middle School Beautification Project from the proceeds.

Special red ribbon event

Frank Davis and Leah Chase special guests at Bookends

Frank Davis and Leah Chase will be special guests of Susan Dai-gre's Bookends, Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis Saturday, Dec. 1, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The stove will be busy cooking up recipes from their latest cook-books, and they will be happy to autograph your purchase.

This is just a little Christmas treat from our own special book store.

Court Street Cuisine and fashions from Princess

Just a little play on words, but a very special holiday event at 100 Court Street, Bay St. Louis.

Saturday, Dec. 8, noon to 2 p.m., Joan Ferrara will present a lavish holiday lunch at Court Street Cuisine while you enjoy the spectacular fashions from the Princess Shoppe Christmas collection.

This should be the special time you share with your best friend during the holidays. Let yourself be spoiled for the afternoon.

THE SEA COAST ECHO, RED RIBBON CHRISTMAS, NOVEMBER 29, 1990-7
The 'New Main Street'—Highway 90

Tucked away on Hwy. 90 is the "New Main Street," a cosmopolitan mix of specialty shops not rivaled by any mall. Couture clothing, European gift wares, fine books, exquisite hand sewing, elegant jewelry, contemporary home furnishings, spectacular photographic portraits. White lights, red ribbons, evergreen and music are the traditional decorations mixed with contemporary merchandise to make shopping on the "New Main Street" an event. What mall can compare with being greeted by your first name, sales associates' personal knowledge of your taste? Parking is plentiful and convenient, service the order of the day and hospitality assured.

There is no place like home for the holidays, and your hometown is special.
